

ALEXANDRIA. VA SATURDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 1.

subsidized congressmen would have it believed that England is hurt by the McKinley bill. Well, Mr. Gladstone knows as much about his country as any one else, and besides, he is a triend of this country. Here is what he says on the subject:

"Protection, although it may inflict incidental collateral blows on other countries, does far greater mischief to the people of the country which adopts such a policy, and whose people it plunders and defrauds The probable tendency produced by the McKiniey bill among Americans will be toward the manufacture of coarser goods, thus degrading their productions. The barm to English commerce will be fractional compared with that done to the people of the protected country. The word 'protection' is a mis-nomer. It ought to be 'oppression.' It is a delusion and a fraud. The adoption of the McKinley law will involve a fearful waste of resources by which the American people ought to be made strong and happy.

Every wise and disinterested man knows that what the distinguished ex-Premier of England says, as quoted, is true; but the protected manufacturers and their paid agents in Congress, and the national republican committee, to whose fund the former are enabled by the tariff to subscribe millions, would not acknowledge that it is true, though so informed by one risen from the

According to a Washington newspaper, Mr. Hume made a speech at the south end of the Aqueduot bridge night before last. but in it, as reported, he said never a word about the Force bil!, or about Laugston's miscegenation ideas. But the omission was present, as nearly all of Mr. Hume's sopporters are in favor of the bill referred to, and all the great body of them, the negroes agree with Langston and Fred, Douglas on the subject of the comminging of the races. Mr. Hume did say, however, as reported, that hais in favor of protecting the infant industries. The most conspicuous infant in- there. dustry in this country is that of tin. It is the former and 2,2 on the latter.

SOME OF those who have heretofore voted the democratic ticker, but who now support Mr. Hame for Congress, attempt to justify their effort to defeat the democratic ticket by the assertion that so good a democrat as Governor Hill, of New York, was elected as an independent. There could not be a more erroneous statement. Gov. Hill never was an independent candidate for any office, and would pity the ignorance, recklessness, or malevolence of the man who said he was. O wing to the sectional legislation of the present Congress, there are now practically only two parties in the South, the white and the black and from the necessity of the case, those who are not with the former must be

The Maryland democrats say they will sweep the State on Tuesday and elect every one of the Congressional members.

At the election next Tuesday gaines are more or less confidently expected by the democrate in Connection, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Onio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee Virginia and Wisconsin. In Arkaness, Indiana and West Virginia the republicans expect gains, which are not conceded however by the democrats.

A Card from a Follower of General Mahone To the Editor of the Richmond Dispatch :

Sir,-Not having seen any expression opinion on the situation in Virginia from the personal following of General Manene, I give you my views, and ninely-nine bun-dredths of the Mahonites agree with me. We will not vote for any republican Congressman this year. On the contrary, we will yote the democratic ticket and see the full democratic delegation goes from this State.

Our reasons are that we will not be dirtated to by Congress as to who shall repre-sent us. We will not have any but waite Virginians, and when Congress says we must be represented by a saucy, impudent and contemptible negro (whom we defeated) it is time to call a halt and say, 'No fu ther will we go." I am speaking for the rank and file of the personal following of General Mahone, and it is an open eccret that his sentiments are the same,
